IF the commonwealers want to find congress they had better go out to the base ball game.

If this car seizing mania keeps up, pretty soon it won't be safe for a man to have a train of thought.

A VERDICT FOR KANSAS.

[From the Washington Star.] Most men if asked which was the most civilized, New York or Kansas, would, OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY OF TOPEKA if required to answer hastily, be apt to reply "New York." Some time ago the New York Evening Post said editorially "We do not want any more states until we can civilize Kansas," and that declaration brought forth a comparison which will probably result in making representatives of New York somewhat deliberate as to thought and speech in which Kansas is concerned. The west-ern champion is Mr. James Willis Gleed, a Vermonter by birth, but now one of the most influential of those who dwell in the great country west of the Mississippi. Mr. Gleed, through the medium of The Forum, asks the question, "Is New York more civilized than Kansas?" and then proceeds to answer in the negative. Starting out with the indisputable but frequently forgotten fact that no section of the country can get true ideas of another section by the perusal of the newspaper because the unusual thing is the one reported by telegraph, the Kansas knight says that if Mr. Gould and Mr. Most monopolize the column of New York news, the western farmer dependent on that column for information is gradually led to think of New Yorkers as either "capitalists" or anarchists, while if no Kansas woman appears in the New York papers except Mrs. Lease, the tendency of New York is to generalize from her, and some hundreds of thousands of sensible, sweet-tempered Weather Indications.

Washington, May 1.—Forecast till

8 p. m. Wednesday: For Kansas—Fair, cooler in extreme eastern portion tonight; warmer Wednesday; variable women count for nothing. Mr. Gleed's comparisons are, as he admits, broad and rough and are made "not with the idea of producing conviction, but rather of provoking reflection." There are in Kansas a million and a half of people and about the same number inhabit Manbout the same num hattan Island. Kansas, it is claimed, was settled by a primary migration from New England and a later one from the middle states; New York is "rather a foreign community, a great aggregation of strangers, largely Irish, largely German, considerably Russian and extensively miscellaneous." The New York magnet is that of accumulated wealth and power and the alleged "existence of averaging aggregation of strangers approximation for pleasure. extraordinary opportunities for pleasure and profit;" the attraction that at first drew men to Kansas was "a war waging for an abstract principle, the abolition of human slavery." The statistics of illiter-acy are unquestionably favorable to Kan-sas, where four-fifths of all the children sas, where four-fifths of all the children under 18 and over 5 years of age were enrolled in the schools; in the state of New York, scarcely more than two-thirds; in New York city, less than one-half. New York fails to furnish its children adequate school accommodations, many thousands of little ones growing up in ignorance because of this neglect; even in the arid regions of Western Kansas every child has opportunity to attend school. In the number of colleges and in enrollment of students, Kansas leads the great eastern metropolis by such a distance that Mr. Gleed feels justified in saying that Manhattan Island is not a patron of liberal education; that it is almost wholly engrossed in money-making and money-spending; that the intel-lectual life of America is not there. After calling attention to the characteristics of newspapers published in New York city and in the state for which he makes such an admirable showing, Mr. Friday and that state is experiencing the relief and pleasure that the rest of the country would feel if much-abused Kansas, and arrives at the well-established conclusion that nowhere else in the world can there be found a body of a million and a half of people who do any more independent thinking, reading and debating than the million and a half of whom he speaks. Comparison as to vice and crime is entirely unnecessary; New York city spends nearly six millions dollars annually upon its police department, a sum that equals the entire cost of town-ship, county, municipal and state govern-ment in Kansas. That drunkenness is common in New York every one knows; Mr. Gleed says that in the city of Topeka there are children more than a dozen years old who never saw a saloon or a drunken man. In the matter of the religious character and habits of the people, the facts and figures prove New to be very much inferior to Kansas, while if the doctrines of John Stuart Mill and Thorold Rogers-that the best governed and best civilized country is that in which property is generally distributed and where the great body of the people live in material comfort-are accepted as true, then Kansas is a long way in advance of Manhattan Island. Politically, too, Kansas has no reason to be afraid of competitive measurement. The misgovernment of New York city is and, with a few brief exceptions, always has been notorlously disgraceful. Mr. Gleed says, "that citizen of New York, Capt. Kidd, first set the fashion, and piracy has flourished on Manhattan Island ever since." History shows it to have been a riotous community in which one or two unscrupulous men held supreme power and exercised it for anything except the general good. Admitting that Populism has worked some harm in Kansaz—evil that will, he believes, be undone at the next election—Mr. Gleed asks the Evening Post if it had to choose whether it would be ruled by Mr. Croker or Mr. Lewelling, would it choose Croker? The answer is easy, and the victory just now is with Kansas.

SENATOR PEFFER wears a pair of gold rimmed spectacles, and besides keeps on the lapel of his coat a pair of gold eyeglasses fastened to a gold clasp and attached by a gold chain. Will the Pops endure such treachery?

GOVERNOR PENNOYER refused to interfere in the matter of trains being seized by Coxeyites. That would have been too commendable and orderly a thing to expect of him. He will probably order out the militia to prevent the arrest of the lawbreakers.

COLUMBIAN MEDICAL INSTITUTE

In Which Joe Dolman of This City Has Been Interested is No More,

The Columbian Medical institute is no more. J. W. Dolman, better know in Topeka as "Joe" Dolman, secretary of this medical institute, has signed an agreement to quit business.

Since the Chicago dispensary was closed and the proprietors removed from the state, County Health Officer Dr. C. S. McClintock has been waging a warfare on other quacks and he is responsible for the closing of the Columbian Medical institute which had its headquarters in the old St. James hotel building on West Sixth street.

Although Dr.-S. E. Martin was advertised as the president of the institute Joe Dolman was recognized as the business manager. Dr. McClintock in speaking of the case said: "This establishment has been doing a thriving business and has been making lots of money. Dolman and a young medical student by the name of Reed have been traveling over the state and working the public. They did a big business near Eskridge where they took notes and pretended to be able to cure any kind of a chronic case. Dol-man was a student of the Kansas Medical College at one time, but he has been removed by the faculty."

When the officers of the Kansas Medical College learned what kind of an es-tablishment Dolman was conducting a special meeting of the faculty was called where the following resolutions were

"Whereas, J. W. Dolman, a former stu-dent of the Kansas Medical College, is known to be guilty of unprofessional conduct, and by deception and misstate-ments has implicated the names of cer-tain members of the faculty as being par-ties to such unprofessional conduct;

therefore be it

"Resolved, By the faculty of the Kansas Medical college that said J. W. Dolman shall be notified by the secretary of the college that his connection with the Kansas Medical college has been terminated, and that we renounce and de-nounce his methods."

Dr. McClintock agreed not to prosecute providing the managers of the Columbian institute would quit business, which they have agreed to do and have signed a document to that effect.

BIG SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Filed as Result of the Arrests For Swetlich's Murder.

Two big damage suits were filed in the district court today growing out of the celebrated murder case of Paul Swetlich, the Jackson county farmer whose murderers have so far escaped the penalty of the law.

The plaintiffs in the sults filed today are Joseph Stach and Frek Nowak, neighbors of Swetlich, who were charged with the murder, but who were not convicted when the case was tried in the Jackson county district court last sum-

These two men want damages against William Klussmier, John Q. Myers, ad-

The petition recites the fact that Paul Swetlich went to the home of Stach on the night of October 23, 1892, and was shot and killed by some unknown person as he was about to ride away from the

The petition then says that immediately prior to the death of Swetlich, his life had been insured in various companies, the total amount of the insurance being $87,999, but that Swetlich's income was only about $1,000 while the cost of keeping up this insurance would be about $4,000 annually.

Stach and Nowak charge that they vere arrested through a conspiracy of the defendants who knew they were innocent but caused their arrest that they might secure the life insurance. The petitioners further say that the insurance companies refused to pay the insurance until they were arrested and bound over to the district court without bail and locked up in the Jackson county jail, along with hardened criminals, but that immediately after they were bound over all the insurance companies but one either settled the claims against them or compromised the loss. Stach and Nowak say they have been damaged to the amount for $10,000 each by the prosecution and that it cost them $2,000 each to defend themselves against the prosecution. They want the court to give judgment for $12,000 each.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Items of Interest About Topeks People and Visitors in Town.

The Chaldean club will give their annual banquet this evening at home of Mrs. Edward A. Austin. It is only on these occasions that the husbands of the members are permitted to join them, and since they are only granted this privilege once a year, the preparations for their entertainment are always more or less elaborate. Apple blossoms will be conspicuous in the table decorations, and Mrs. H. E. Ball, president of the club, will preside. Mrs. Wm. Russell, Mrs. Chas. Emery and Mrs. Robert Steele will give short sketches upon interesting topics; Mr. Austin will read a paper on "Frederick the Great," and Mr. Harold Chase another on "Bismarck." After the banquet the evening will be spent in informal social pleasures. The members of the club are: Mrs. E. A. McMath, Mrs. Geo. T. Nicholson, Mrs. Wm. Russell, Mrs. Robt. Steele, Mrs. J. N. Strickler, Mrs. A. H. Connelly, Mrs. Frank Hobert, Mrs. W. W. Mills, Mrs. W. BicA. Green, Mrs. H. T. Chase. Mrs. Furman Baker, Mrs. H. E. Ball, Mrs. E. A. Austin and Mrs. Chas. Emery.
